SAN FRANCISCO—A sweeping probe into conditions under which men are being recruited and shipped to Alaska for fish cannery work was launched today by the police and officials of the State Labor Committee. The investigation follows the claim of the men on board the vessel McLaurin about to sail for Alaska, that they were being forced to leave against their will. Harry Wikoff, one of them, was picked up in the bay after jumping overboard from the boat.

SEATTLE—Nettleton, publisher of the Post Intelligencer began action yesterday in the Superior Court to restrain George Boole from selling 700 shares of stock in the P.-I. to William Randolph Hearst. The plaintiff asks that Boole be requested to return to him the 700 shares of stock on which Nettleton borrowed $55,000, putting up the shares as security and giving a note signed by himself and endorsed by Boole and Kenneth McIntosh. Boole paid the $55,000 note and took the stock from the bank and is refusing to return it to the plaintiff, notwithstanding his repeated offer to pay the note.

SAN REMO—In placing Palestine under British mandate the Council has established within the ancient limits of the Holy Land what is called the "National Home of the Jews." The terms of the mandate protect the national rights of Jewish citizens of other countries; that is to say, a Jew of American, British, French or other nationality may retain his nationality although he is also a citizen of the State of Palestine. Rights of Arabs will also be protected.

He is making the trip north in order to become better acquainted with the Alaskan trade. Mr. Ireland is an ex-serviceman. During the war he received a commission as a first lieutenant. Since his arrival in Wrangell he has made the acquaintance of a number of the boys of the local post of the American Legion. Mr. Ireland is quite enthusiastic over Alaska. He even brags on the postal service which is so generally knocked. He says he was surprised at receiving a letter from his mother only three days after it was posted in Seattle.

Only two more weeks of school.

The Four Judicial Districts of Alaska To Be Rearranged

WASHINGTON—At the instance of Palmer the Senate Judiciary committee has favorably reported the bill re-arranging the four judicial divisions of Alaska. The First Division is unchanged, but changes are made in the boundaries of the Second, giving it all the islands off the coast of this division between Cape Newenham and the point where the 148th meridian west longitude intersects northern line of territory. This gives additional territory in Kuskokwim district. The boundaries of the Third division likewise are changed. The islands off the north coast of the territory east of the 148th meridian are attached to the Fourth division.

Governor Riggs and Family Return

Governor Thomas Riggs, Jr., and family were aboard the Spokane Monday en route to their home in Juneau after an extended trip to Washington and New York.

The Spokane arrived in Wrangell at 5 a. m. and departed within half an hour after breakfast had been served. It was therefore a keen disappointment to the many friends of Governor and Mrs. Riggs that their time in Wrangell was so brief as to permit of nothing more than a few hurried greetings.

While in Washington Governor Riggs was very active in the interest of Alaska. He gave particular attention to the matter of the Forest Service extending more liberal terms to paper manufacturers, and states that some definite terms were agreed upon which cannot fail to attract paper manufacturers to Alaska, especially at this time when the paper shortage in the States is appalling.

Governor Riggs stated that at least half a dozen men of national note whom he met while East will make the trip up the Stikine the coming season.

The Governor further stated that he and Mrs. Riggs had invited two of Mrs. Riggs' nephews who are attending the Harvard law school to spend the summer with them in Alaska, and that the young men would arrive in Juneau within the next two months.

C. M. Coulter, L. A. Olsen, Alex Vreatt, Samuel Cunningham and F. E. Gingrass were appointed members of a committee by Mayor J. G. Grant at a public meeting last Monday night to select a landing place for aeroplanes. The party left this morning on a gasboat for the mouth of the Stikine River, where they will select a field. The committee took as guests W. W. McLaughlin, officer in charge of the local Signal Corps, and Ernest Embs who has recently been discharged from the army after having served three years in the aviation service in France.

CRAIG—(Special) Republican ticket made a clean sweep. Democrats received 10 votes.

Spanish is again heard on the streets of Wrangell, a number of Spanish speaking cannery workers having arrived the first of the week on the Spokane. A number of the men are from the island of Guam while others are from Mexico, Central and South America.

Alfred S. Berg of Ketchikan was a visitor to Wrangell this week.

J. G. GRANT'S BROTHER DIES IN COLORADO

Mayor J. G. Grant received a cablegram yesterday from Glenwood Springs, Colorado, stating that his brother, Adam Grant, had been operated on unsuccessfully and that there was no hope for his recovery. The cablegram was signed by his niece, Mrs. Mary Powell. An hour later Mr. Grant received another cablegram from Mrs. H. T. Duggan, his sister, which stated that her brother had passed away in the hospital.

The news came as a great shock to Mayor Grant. He received a letter from his brother only a few days ago, and at the time the letter was written the brother and his family were all well. Mr. Grant does not know whether the operation became necessary on account of an accident or the development of some sudden complication.

Adam Grant was born in Nova Scotia 60 years ago. For the past 30 years he has resided in the state of Colorado where he has engaged in ranching near the town of Rifle. He is survived by a widow and four grown children, two of whom are married.

Mayor Grant, in company with Mrs. Grant, visited Adam Grant and family at their Colorado ranch in 1915. The beautiful double tooth Elk charm which Mayor Grant wears was presented to him by his brother. The teeth were taken from an Elk which was killed by Adam Grant.</p

EX-POSTMASTER OF CRAIG UNDER IS ARRESTED

Charles A. Fox Indicted On Charge of Embezzlement of $167.77

Charles A. Fox, formerly postmaster at Craig, was arrested yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Harry Wallace of Wrangell, upon a warrant issued by Judge R. W. Jennings, following the return of a secret indictment on Monday. The indictment charges Fox with the embezzlement of $1,167.77.

It is reported that Fox some time ago made good the alleged shortage but that in keeping with its policy, the postal department insisted upon prosecution.

The defendant arrived in Ketchikan this morning and was trying this morning to make arrangements for bail. Judge Jennings ordered him to appear in court at 2 o'clock this afternoon for arraignment.

When arraigned this afternoon Postmaster Fox pleaded not guilty and upon application of counsel his bail was reduced from $3,000 to $500.—Chronicle.

No Mistake

A member of a national medical association tells the following story at the expense of a physician:

"Are you sure," an anxious patient once asked—"are you sure that I shall recover? I have heard that doctors have sometimes given wrong diagnoses and treated a patient for pneumonia who afterward died of typhoid fever."

"You have been woefully misinformed," replied the physician indignantly. "If I treat a man for pneumonia he dies of pneumonia."

WRANGELL AS A LANDING PLACE FOR AIRPLANES

Military Authorities Still Seeking Information on the Subject

The following cablegram was transmitted through Colonel Lenoir of Seattle from Washington, D. C. to W. W. McLaughlin, officer in charge of the local signal corps:

Washington, D. C., April 24, 1920.

The Air Service is contemplating a flight to Nome. If approved will start from New York about July 1. Route will be Eagle, Fairbanks, Ruby and Nome. Desire information regarding possible landing places between these points. Also a report on landing places at Wrangell, Circle, Hamlin, Rampart, Gibbon, Golofnin.

Required specifications are: 600 yards square, or L shape 200 yards wide. Long, narrow field adequate if direction of prevailing winds make landing into wind possible. Also secure reports of possible fields not in keeping with the above dimensions. Desire fields smooth, level, and solid as possible. Desire no obstructions surrounding fields. State amount and estimated cost of clearing necessary. Can work be done by resident population?

Fields may be 30 miles distant from cities if can be reached with supplies. Mention prevailing winds. Endeavor to secure this information and wire this office on or before May 5, confirming by mail.

SQUIRE.

Mr. McLaughlin, upon receiving the above cablegram showed it to Mayor J. G. Grant and solicited his cooperation and assistance in making a report on the matter. Mayor Grant called for a public meeting of the citizens last Monday evening at the town hall. There was a good attendance of citizens. Mayor Grant was elected chairman of the meeting and Mr. Worden secretary. It was the opinion of a number present that there would be no difficulty in finding a field in the vicinity of the mouth of the Stikine river that would meet all of the above requirements. Hon. P. C. McCormack made a motion that the Mayor appoint a committee of five to make a trip to the region near the mouth of the Stikine river and select a field and make a report to Mr. McLaughlin. The Mayor appointed the following committee: C. M. Coulter, chairman; L. A. Olson, Alex Vreat, Samuel Cunningham and F. E. Gingras.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

MEN TURNING TO BOLSHEVISM

Something Profoundly Disquieting in the Constant Repetition of Word Which Seems to Convey Such a Sinister Meaning.

Article XII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

I met a young American major just back from the French front. I had known him for many years. Before the United States entered the war he was one of the many impatient at our delay. He believed that it was our duty to join the fight when the ruthless submarine campaign torpedoed the Lusitania, sending to cold, wet graves American women and children. I distinctly remember his face as he read the headlines in the papers telling of the murderous slaughter of Americans on the high seas. Now when he greeted me he started me with his first words, "The war is over. I'm a Bolshevik." I did not know what the word meant, yet it carried to my mind an impression, and while the impression was hazy, it was clear at least in one particular. It sounded like the confession of a crime.

He had always been of a quiet, conservative type. Before the war one would have judged him to be a pacifist; he was even-tempered, mild of manner, and I still think that before August, 1914, he was a pacifist in head and heart. It was only the call of a just cause, the fight for an ideal in which he believed, that had made him a soldier. In this respect he was typical of 90 per cent of his countrymen.

I had spoken to him the day he enlisted, for he was one of those who volunteered, who might have waited for conscription and claimed a just exemption. He was in the beginning of his married life, with two very young children. By profession he was an engineer. Going to war meant leaving a wife and two babies, leaving a job that promised advancement. I recall his enthusiasm, the intensity of his patriotism, his quiet disregard of the danger to himself. I am sure that there was little hate in his morale. He saw a danger to the world. The honor of his country had been offended against. He was an American, one of those upon whom the duty fell, so he went.

He a Bolshevik! Why? I was confounded, confused. The only meaning I gave to his remark was that he was an anarchist. The word "Bolshevik" sounded red to me. It flared of the torch, photographed disorder, lawlessness—it registered blood, violence, assassination, force, hate, insanity. I wondered how this nine-lettered word had become the vehicle for so many sensations that disturbed peace of mind and sounded alarm.

Where had the word come from and what company had it kept that so fouled its soul? What did it really mean—had it a definite meaning? Was it a bug like the "fu" germ? Had it come among nations to destroy them and to the hearts of men to silence the heavenly message, "Peace, on earth, good will to men." Would it run around the world as a scourge? Was it a postscript to the bloody war lesson, prophesying more anguish and tears than four years' fighting had brought? Would the world, coming out of the war bent, now be broken?

Or was it a meaningless myth? Was the word a bogie, a bad joke, a nightmare pressing heavily on a tired, nervous world's head?

Seeking Word's Real Meaning.

Or was the meaning that men had read into the word a lie? Was bolshevism the message of a new Messiah being cried down by the money-changers of our time in the same way their ancestors had silenced the word from the Mount and destroyed the Message Bearers with the lash and the cross?

In every mind was the thought and from every tongue fell the word. Russia had given the world a word. It had encircled the globe. Everywhere people were speaking the word—it found lodgment in every brain, a living place in every language. Its use had become universal. The old, the young, rich and poor, the learned, the uneducated, the serious, the simple, the toller, the artist, the poet, and the peddler, the tinker and the thinker, held the thought and spoke the word. Men, women and children spoke the word, read the word, and felt the thought it carried.

To the nine hundred and ninety-nine it was a word of ill-omen, a word of terror and fear. To the one in a thousand it was a word of hope, a light for the feet of a stumbling world, and the nine hundred and ninety-nine said that some of these people called Bolsheviks were dreamers of a strange dream, that twisted idealism had made them mad, that the majority of those who profess faith in bolshevism were sick with a strange, social fever, that they were mischief-makers, ne'er-do-wells, criminals, that they sought to burn the world.

I made up my mind that I would learn the real meaning of the word. The dictionary definition threw no light on its meaning. I came to the conclusion that to learn what bolshevism is I might with wisdom adopt the scientific method used by the doctor of medicine in arriving at a diagnosis. The doctor examines and gathers the symptoms, the meaning of the disease. He then determines what diseases might produce these symptoms. By a process of elimination he discards one possibility after another until at last there is but one disease left, one thing that the symptoms can mean.

I discovered at the outset that most of us have the habit of using terms loosely. Seldom do we give time or thought to the exact, real meaning of things. The meaning of bolshevism is too important to the world not to try to understand it. There is a difference between having the acquaintance of a word and knowing; the former is a mere introduction, the latter an intimacy.

Since the war, when the fastidious diner wearily orders his consomme and the waiter brings it a bit tardily or cold, he thinks to himself, or if courageous enough to speak his mind, he calls the cook a Bolshevik. He has found a word to express his irritation. It serves his profane feelings and at the same time saves his smug respectability.

See Bolshevism Everywhere.

Once the maid asking for an afternoon off provoked a knowing smile. Her mistress granted the request, charged it up to a possible romance and generally suspected the policeman on the beat. Since the war it is different. The maid is looked upon with suspicion. Her motives are questioned. The request is considered a symptom of the new terrible disease, bolshevism. The mistress thinks to herself: The maid doesn't want to work any more; she is down with the epidemic.

The office boy, working the reliable excuse that his grandmother has died again, to get an afternoon off to go to the ball game, is trying to shirk work, in the opinion of his employer, who formerly, when such an application was made from the same source, chuckled as he granted it, while his memory took him back to his own boyhood days when he used the grandmother yarn to answer the call of the ball field.

Many captains of industry see the symptoms of the new dread in every movement and thought of the workers. The demand for living conditions and decent wages are grudgingly received by minds soured with the thought that it is bolshevism.

The hirers of child labor, looking hopefully at legislation designed to end child slavery, call the leaders of child life conservation bolshevists. When doctors and public-spirited men and women insist that an irreparable injury is being done the nation in allowing women to work for a period in excess of the hours they are able to work without menacing their motherhood, the profiters from woman labor cry out: "You are invading the right of private contract; you are mad with bolshevism."

Every Sort of Definition.

The wag with the wit of a barber defined bolshevism as a wild idea surrounded by whiskers. The saloon-keeper, bowled over by prohibition, screams "bolshevism." The anti-saloon leaders come back with the answer, "Your 'personal liberty' cry is only a camouflage for bolshevism."

If anyone disagrees with you, don't grant him the right to an opinion, don't reason with him—just call him a Bolshevik. The word has become an epithet, a popular invective, a slur, an insult, an outlet for contempt, contumely and hate. Its parentage influences our definition of it. Most of us see the Russians with the eyes of the caricaturists, who for so many years have portrayed the Russian as the mooklik with high boots, disheveled hair, wild whiskers, the face of an assassin, the body of a terrorist in action, the suggestion of a long dagger smeared with hot blood, under his greatcoat.

If a doctor, making an examination of all of the patients in his hospital, discovered they all had certain symptoms in common, such as temperature, weakness and pain, and because of these findings should diagnose the sickness of all of the patients as pneumonia, the doctor would be regarded a lunatic, yet there are men in the world today who are as foolish as such a doctor would be. They call every symptom of unrest, without regard to its history, bolshevism.

Tell Fortunes With Bones.
In the Transvaal the belief in Kaffir doctors and their wizardry has not died out. Nearly every old Kaffir has always with him a bag of bones—knuckles and joints of animals. With these he pretends to be able to foretell the future. He throws the "dolos," as they are called, and then reads out the omens. Should a white man wish to confer with the oracle, he must throw the bones himself. Many white men firmly believe in the ability of the Kaffir doctor to cure them from sundry ills, and in Rhodesia there have been many cases where the Kaffir doctors have saved whites from the ravages of the terrible fevers that rage there, in addition to coping successfully with toothache and other ills.

Famous English Honey.

One of the most sought after products of Lakeland is its famous heather honey. The French claim that the rosemary honey of Narbonne is the finest in the world, but that of the English falls may challenge a sporting comparison. Its only fault is that there is so little of it. A development of bee keeping on the extensive American system, under the management of skilled apiculturists, could increase it a thousandfold, and provide the public with an unequalled medicinal food for invalids and children. With fruit culture, dairying ought to be combined to provide fertilizing material, and soldier settlers could buy in the Lakeland Shorthorn, one of the finest dual purpose cows in existence.—London Mail.

Praise Japanese Music.

The song which Japanese workmen sing when raising the roof trees of a new building ranks with the purest music in the world, according to Henry Elechheim, a Boston composer, who is spending a year in Japan studying oriental music. He said in Tokyo: "The orientals have evolved by the process of elimination a perfect philosophy, a perfect art and a perfect music. If we could think as orientals think, we would realize the absolute simplicity and perfection of their art life." As he goes about Japan he takes notes on the primitive music of laborers and on the sound of temple bells, with their beautiful overtones, with the view of making them themes for his compositions.

Icelandic History.

For 400 years Iceland was an aristocratic republic, ruled by the great families of the early settlers, among whom was a Norse queen of Dublin. A 14 days' open air parliament of all Iceland met annually in June at Thingviller, and the speaker of the law (log-soguman) used to recite from memory the whole of the unwritten, elaborate laws of the country to the assembly. In 1262-1264 Iceland was united to Norway, and in 1380 with Norway to Denmark. The Danish rule ruined the island economically, but since the granting of self-government and the re-establishment of the old parliament, in 1874, at Reykjavik, great progress has been made.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Unique Philippine Fruits.

There have been found in the Philippines two fruits entirely unknown to Europe, and even to America. One of these is the durian, which grows on a lofty tree somewhat resembling an elm, is about as large as a coconut, has a shiny shell and contains a creamy pulp which combines some of the flavors of delicious custard with those of a fine cheese. American soldiers in the Philippines dubbed the durian the "vegetable hamburger." The other rare fruit is the mangosteen, but the exquisitely flavored liquid it contains has not yet been successfully preserved for shipping.

Prehistoric Birds.

The diatrimma of the Rocky mountain region, a fossil ostrichlike bird, of which the American Museum of Natural History has recovered bones enough to complete restoration of the skeleton, is shown to have been nearly seven feet tall, with a massive neck, a head 17 inches long and wings too small for flight. Its powerful beat is believed to have served in procuring its chief food from fresh water clams. The bones were obtained from the bad lands of the Big Horn basin, Wyoming, where some 3,000,000 years ago, in the Eocene period, this giant of North American birds must have been a contemporary of the eohippus, the pigmy four-toed horse.

Man of Contradictions.

July 30 is the birthday of Samuel Rogers, who was born in 1763 and died in 1855. For fifty years the world of art and letters flocked to the entertainments given at his beautiful London house in St. James' place. It was said that an invitation to one of his breakfasts was as good as a formal introduction to literary society. He was a poet of some merit, but he was more famous—and is better remembered—for his caustic wit. At the same time he was extremely generous. "He certainly had the kindest heart and the unkindest tongue of anyone I ever knew," said Fanny Kemble.

Very Broken.

Athlete—"Did—I—break it, doctor?" Doctor—"I will be plain, sir. The arm is broken, the collarbone crushed, the skull is fractured—" Athlete—"No, no, no! The—did—I—break the—" Doctor—"What, sir?" Athlete—"The rec—erd?"

HYDABURG TOWN DOLLED UP IN GREEN

(New Native)

Any stranger coming through Sukwan would think he was approaching the emerald isle instead of Hydaburg. Since the school was painted green, everyone seems to have a bias for that color. There is no question about the beauty of a green roof. It looks fine from the bay, sort o' like a well kept lawn. We would suggest that other colors be used to give variety. The colors of nature, of life are essentially varied and different. Whatever color is applied, let us have the town painted before the Fourth.
